

Another year is at its close

Not Left or forsaken

The last week of school was an emotional one as the students and staff said goodbye to one of the toughest semesters in the school's history.

The empty desks in the classrooms were still noticeable, and the names of the eleven girls who were no longer at school were continuously mentioned, with painful sadness.

The devil showed the controlling power he has over those who are not totally submitted to Christ by taking over the bodies of these girls and using them to cause sleepless nights for family and the volunteers.

In hurting these girls, he put fear in some and strengthened the faith of others through his horrible displays, for a month, in the lives of these young ladies.

November and December were used to pick up the pieces, to healing.

In spite of it all the Lord, our God, proved that He would never leave us nor forsake us through the testimonies of the young people as they searched for Him and began finding Him in their own, personal way.

During these months self esteem was built, young people were converted, and a stronger relationship was built between the staff and the students. The team threw themselves into the work and the village witnessed the steadfastness of the workers of Christ through the adversities of life.

The devotion hall where all major gathering happens search for answers to their endless questions, to rebuild the brokenness of students, staff, and parents, and to focus on

Dedicated Workers for the King

Siparuta Mission Academy was blessed this semester with hard-working, God fearing volunteers. After the MFL's divided to spread the word in other parts of South America, the Lord sent others to continue the work.

The dedication of these workers was evidence of the magnificent of God, who knows His people and also knows to whom He can lean on to handle the fight during this ardent period of the great controversy.

The Mann family from Michigan, USA, and Chenobie Jupiter from Essequibo, Guyana, joined with the remainder of the team labour in Siparuta Village.

The dedication of each family, and the hard work of these people was seen and felt by all around them. Washing and bathing in the creek, cooking on the wood fire—May the Lord bless them all, as they keep at the work that the Lord gives them.

The T-Shirt's Arrived

No adjective is qualified enough to describe the Emotion the students felt as they each collected a Siparuta Mission Academy polo shirt of their very own.

A year earlier, the need for a branded t-shirt for the students to wear on special days.

The 'yes' was

Administrators saw a golden opportunity as they listened to their friend proudly speak of the charity work his then employers did. They shared with their friend, the school's announced to the already enthusiastic students via speaker phone. Then the wait began. A challenge was given for interested students to design a logo for the clothing, Phylino Williams and Merol Morris found pleasure in diligently creating the accepted piece.

Two semesters later and the wait was forgotten and forgiven as the students of Siparuta Mission Academy held their very first logoed school clothing.

The shirts are currently being worn as a second school top by those who had but one. There appreciation is also shown in the extra care that is taken when the polo's are worn. Certain games are left for another time as to avoid soiling.

We have a wall!!!!

In September the form three class sat down with their teacher and decided that it was time to separate the classrooms. They decided that they would love to be able to block out the distractions from around them, and to settle down and focus on their last three years of school.

That was music to their teachers ears, as she has wanted that since she arrived at the school three years before. After they worked out the cement, the work hours, and the labours (themselves), they excitedly walked together to the boat and asked a parent to do the purchase for them.

A few days later, the making of the blocks began. And six weeks later the first wall was erected. Amazing. This has taken a while, and the wall may not be the most perfectly done but its structurally safe and the sealing will be done professionally. But, most of all, the students did it and they are very proud of themselves and their
